Our readers will find in another column the advertisement of a Lecture on Phrenology by A. O'LEARY, at Odd Fellows' Hall, on Monday night, the 22nd inst. The subject is highly interesting, and will doubtless scure for the distinguished Lecturer a large audience.

Celebration of St. Patrick's Birth

On Thursday evening last a large number of the sons, and descendants of the "Green Isle," assembled for the purpose of c lebrating the birth day of St. PATRICK, once the apostle or patron saint of Ireland. History informs us that St. Patrick, by some was supposed "to have been a native of Cornwall, whose zeal prompted him to cross the channel for the conversion of the pagan Irish. By others, however, he is said to have been a native of Kirkpatrick, on the Clyde, and that his name was Saccuthus, until changed by pope Celestine. Others again assert that he was born in Brittany, and carried by some freebooters to Ireland, where he was at first employed in keeping sheep. Be this as it may, it is allowed by all, that his endeavors were crowned with great success, and that he established there a number of schools and monasteries. Nennius states that his missions continued forty years, and various miracles are attributed to him, particularly the often-repeated assertion of the absence of all venomous creatures from Ireland, ascribed by the superstitious to his holy benediction. We can no more reconcile the conflicting testimonies. relative to the place of his birth, than we could determine the validity of his miraculous powers; and perhaps for the sake of truth, the least that is said of either the better. It would seem that the latter years of his life were devoted to acts of piety and religious meditation, and that he died at an advanced age about the year 493."

The festive board was headed by Mr. P. DOYLE, President, the foot being graced by Mr. J. McLEOD KEATING, and both receiving the assistance of the energetic and attentive Secretary, Mr. P. H. McDonnell-After the removal of the cloth the following regular toasts were read by the Vice Pres-1st. St. Patrick and the day we celebrate. Responded to by Hon. James M. Davidson.

when the crowd, with deep regret, took leave of "tiger No. 1," with the hope, however, that 1859 would usher in "tiger No. 2."

THE GAIRTY .- As Adrienne night before last Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne gave the highest manifestation of her genius, to the slimmest audience that we have seen during her present engagement, In itself the play is by no means powerful. It is neither thrilling enough to work deeply upon the sympathies, nor elegant enough to captivate the fancy, to secure the approbation of a correct judgment. The tragic scene is simply a tragedy, and lose much of its power and impres siveness by the manner of its introduction It is not backed by the previous incidents of the plot in the right way. The contest betweeen Adrienne and the Princess for the love of the Count is too artless, too unnatural, in its details to be true to the characteristics of woman, and her love. To Adrienne alone is given the passion and devotion of a woman; while the Princes is made a cold, passionless being, without soul or motive. She has neither love or ambition to prompt her to take the life of the actress, and is as the murderess, the cold hearted, unrelieved, unimpelled, heartless villain. This is out of all character because it is unwomanly in the last degree. De Saze. the object of the strife, is meant to be a brave and chivalrous gentlemen; and yet we find him protesting unbounded affection for Adrienne, and at the same time the spiritless tool in the hands of the Princess, meekly, silently submitting to be insulted, commanded and driven as a slave by her. The strength of the plot is thus lost, in the disgust we feel for one who should, as much or more than any, command our admiration. Advience and Michonnd, the stage director, are the only two per sonages that the author has properly present-But notwithstanding these drawbacks, the superb acting of Mrs. HAYN's redeemed the faults, in a great measure, of the author. Her voice was much better than before; it was full clear and musical-and her entire conception and rendition of the play was really as fine as anything we have seen. In our estimation it was very nearly perfect. The company by whom she was sustained, we cannot blame for not being well up in their parts, when they did so well otherwise.

Last night Mrs. HAYNE, played Ecodne, and to-night will appear as Griscleis in the play of that name written expressly for her. By the way, shall we not have the Love Chase during the present engageme it?

Medical Science.

The history of "HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS." the most remarkable Medicine of the day, and the many cures that have been performed with it in cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility; and diseases arising from a disordered liver or stomach, places it among the most astonishing discoveries that has taken place in the medical world. The diseases to which these Bitters are applicable are so universal that there are but few of our friends who may their virtues in their own families or circle of acquains at least one remedy among the many advertised medicines, deserving the public commendation. It is a fact that, in the minds of many persons, a prejudice | Middling Fair. exists against what are called Patent Medicines; but why should this prevent you resorting to an article that has such an array of testimony to support it as Hoofland's German Bitters? Physicians prescribe it, why should you discard it? Judges, usually considered men of talent, have and do use it in their own families. Why should you reject it? Clergymen and those the most eminent, take it, why should not you? Let not your prejudice usurp your reason, to the everlasting injury of your health; if you are sick and require a medicine try these Bitters. These Bitters are prepared and sold by Dr. C. M. Jackson, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., and by druggists and store keepers in every town and village in the United States, Canadas, West Indies, and S. America, at 75 cents per bottle. See that the signa-
